Sent it to His Mother in Germany.

Mr. Jacob Esbedsen, who is in the employ of the Chicago Lumber Co., at Des Moines, Iowa, says: "I have just sent some medicine back to mother in the old country, that I know from personal use to be the best medicine in the world for rheumatism, having used it in my family for several years. It is called Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It always does the work." 50 cents a bottle for sale by J. R. Michels.

Wm. Hall, an aged man of Washington, Utah, was found dead in a ditch near his residence, last Sunday, the 18, it being supposed that he was pulled in by a horse when leading it to water, and he being feeble could not extricate himself.

John T. Morse is prepared to make to order on short notice, Molasses Barrels, at lowest living prices.

Franklin R. Snow, a former resident of St. George, and now a member of the Consolidated Implement Company, of Salt Lake, arrived in town last Sunday evening, accompanied by his wife, on pleasure bent, and being desirous of having a pleasant time with old friends, issued a sufficient number of invitations to fill the new Hall, which were in honor of A. W. Ivins and wife and F. R. Snow and wife, and were complimentary. The Hall was well filled with the old standbys and the evening was very nicely spent in dancing interspersed with singing, recitations, &c., until midnight.

We join with the many friends of both families in wishing them a long and pleasant journey through life.

Travelers desiring Hay, Grain and Stabling, can find first class accommodations at William Lang's, near east part of city.

AN ELOPEMENT. Joseph Field of Beaver, was in this city Friday. The purpose of his visit was to try and locate the whereabouts of his daughter, who it is said has eloped with a commercial traveler? They are supposed to be coming this way, and the gentleman traced them as far as Kanosh, but lost the scent at that place.—Nephi Republic.

The following, which we clip from the Ogden Standard, if true, should be widely circulated so as to let the people have an insight into this campaign chicanery.

MINT DIRECTOR Preston has sent out a vicious little report intended to injure the silver cause and discredit the statement of silver speakers. Without a word of explanation, the statement is telegraphed throughout the land that the mints are now coining 3,000,000 silver dollars a month. The average reader will be lead to believe that the mints are adding money to the circulation of the country and that in limited quantities the mints are still open to silver, but closed against the flood of foreign silver, which the gold orators have said so much about. The truth is the government is today doing what the silver men demanded it should do, when it began the bond issues in 1894. Under the Sherman law, silver bullion of the coinage value of $177,000,000 accumulated in the U. S. Treasury, but was represented in circulation by $124,000,000 of silver certificates. The law allowed the Treasurer to coin this bullion, redeem silver certificates therewith and appropriate the seigniorage. The seigniorage would amount to $53,000,000, and at the time of the bond issues would have prevented the Treasury from being plundered by the gold sharks, if a silver man had been Treasurer. Two months ago, when the silver forces first become formidable, the Treasury department went quietly to work to coin this bullion and, instead of holding the bullion thus coined for the redemption of silver certificates, as it has all along claimed it was compelled to do, the dollars are escaping from the Treasury department and are being used for campaign purposes. If the Democratic national committee fails to score a point against the administration performing this sneaking, campaign trick, it will display an incapacity which we are not as yet prepared to charge it.

"Business is in pretty poor shape," remarked the energetic man.

"Yaws," replied Cholly Dawdle "I've always herd it was dad form."

HANDCART EXPERIENCE.

Continued.

They said if we would take pains and follow their instructions they would direct us to where there is a very dim track that would lead us to the Little Sandy, but we would have to travel for about 2 miles through large sage brush and it would be hard to pull our cart thru, and there was no water until we reached the Sandy, which would be the middle of the next day. We followed their directions and found the way as they had described it to us, but arrived at the Little Sandy about the middle of the forenoon, having camped by ourselves without food or water.

We stopped in a small patch of timber which was on both banks of the stream, and in looking on the opposite side I saw a large bear, but a short distance from us, the river being not more than 20 feet wide at this point. The land on that side was narrow, with banks from 10 to 20 feet high, the floods having taken the soil away at some former time. I took out my old shot-gun but bruin wheeled and made for the bank to where there was an opening like a large door, into this he walked and we saw him no more, for which we were exceedingly thankful.

Incidents.

Continued.

Captain Smith kindly furnished the elders horses to ride and carry their things 25 miles, to the main settlements in Carson Valley. We put up with a brother Nixon, a merchant. Here we read in the papers of the sad death of Parley P. Pratt, who was killed in Arkansas by one McLane of San Francisco, who stabbed him to the heart.

The next day we took dinner with brother and sister Lawson. He said he had no money but he had a heart and made elder Hawkins a present of a new suit of missionary clothes, then accompanied us a few miles, calling on everybody we met to "hand over some of their loose change," to the Sandwich Island elders. (Brother Lawson had been on a mission himself and knew what we needed.) Simon Baker donated five dollars Charles Walker nine dollars.

Brother Nixon told us to put our things into his wagons and he would haul them across the mountains to Murphy's, a distance of a hundred miles, where he was going for merchandise.
